Legastat Ltd recognises that information is one of its most valuable assets. We are committed to protecting the confidentiality, integrity and availability of the information entrusted to us by our clients, employees, suppliers and other stakeholders.

As a specialist provider of litigation support, eDisclosure, digital forensic services, document review and legal document management, we understand the importance of maintaining robust information security controls and protecting sensitive and confidential information.

To achieve this, Legastat:

- Operates an Information Security Management System (ISMS) based upon internationally recognised information security standards.
- Maintains appropriate technical, organisational and physical security measures to protect information against loss, unauthorised access, disclosure, alteration or destruction.
- Conducts regular risk assessments and reviews of information security risks and controls.
- Ensures employees and contractors receive information security awareness training.
- Applies access controls to ensure information is only available to authorised individuals.
- Maintains policies and procedures relating to information security, data protection, incident management, business continuity and information retention.
- Monitors compliance with applicable legal, regulatory and contractual requirements, including UK GDPR and the Data Protection Act 2018.
- Reviews and continually improves its information security controls and management processes.

Information security is a responsibility shared by all employees, contractors and third parties working on behalf of Legastat.

We are committed to continual improvement and the ongoing protection of the information assets entrusted to us.
